The Alliance for Community Development is a Bay Area 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization dedicated to increasing access to capital and support for local, underrepresented entrepreneurs including but not limited to women, people of color, immigrants, people with disabilities, and veterans.

In 2021, the Alliance engaged in more place-based programmatic work than any previous year. Taking our existing program model and applying it to one focused area at a time was an overwhelmingly positive experience that will help guide our future work. In the spirit of place, we created this directory to showcase a sampling of the incredible entrepreneurs operating out of Oakland’s distinct neighborhoods. We want to give a special thanks to our Summer Youth Coro Fellows, Astrid Utting and Sydney Zeng, for creating the first iteration of this guide.

Putting together this directory was a labor of love, and we are proud that it is hyper-local, place-based, and features entrepreneurs that we’ve worked closely with. We hope that you’ll enjoy learning about some of Oakland’s small businesses, and that you’ll support them by making a purchase.

Oaklandia Cafe is about challenging the social norm and creating a space of belonging through food inclusivity. By using the skills and talents of its owners, they are creating a new wave of Black and Brown owned cafes in order to build a foundation for cultivating generational wealth. Their goal is to eventually partner with the community to create more opportunities for other female entrepreneurs of color. Customers should know of Oaklandia Cafe’s strong belief in the power of fresh, high-quality food. They’re happy to be a part of the Oakland community and look forward to being around for years to come.

Visit the cafe in person and find them on Instagram for updates!
Pound Bizness has expanded from a home-based business to being featured at various Bay Area farmer's markets, in local wine lounges and restaurants, and at special events around Oakland. They offer local pick-up and nationwide shipping. Their pound cakes connect communities and families one slice at a time, which makes them great additions to family gatherings, team meetings, organization events, church fundraisers or simply “just because.”

Customers should know how important giving back to the community is to Pound Bizness’ founders. They take pride in being able to donate slices and extend scholarships to young entrepreneurs.
Wanda’s Cooking is a food pop-up that creates an intimate series of curated restaurant experiences based on Southern cuisine with an updated flair. Additionally, Wanda sells salt-less Creole seasoning and a variety of Pepper ChowChows, which are a Southern pickled relish that range from sweet, to mild, to hot. Her Pepper Chowchow has been featured in Buzzfeed, EaterSF, and Bon Appetit. Wanda’s pop-up restaurants serve as a way for her to take people on food adventures and connect with the community. Through heating her takeout meals up at home, she hopes her cooking can be at the forefront of people’s family dinners and celebrations.

Born out of necessity, along with tradition and love for her family, shop owner Guadalupe Garcia opened La Nieta de Pancho. As someone who is extremely connected to her community, she feels that it’s important that she open an accessible and affordable shop in her community for people to visit and connect with.

She wants new customers to know that the shop sells loose spices and flowers to your liking. It is something that has always reminded her of her parents and of home and she would like to provide that same feeling of remembrance to others.

Oakland native Xenia St. Charles was searching for a relief to personal skin ailments but found no solutions that didn’t irritate her skin or smell like someone’s medicine cabinet. That led her on a journey to develop skincare products that not only remedied skin irritations but smelled wonderful too. Thus, in May 2019, BRASH was founded as a skincare line that makes customers “look, feel and smell as fly as they are!” With over 20 scents to choose from for skincare, haircare, and space care, there’s plenty of options to choose from and indulge in.

New customers should know that Xenia created the company to heal herself and her family. There is love and intention in every single recipe.
Having had a personal problem with hirsutism, which is a symptom of PCOS (Polycystic Ovarian Syndrome) where women grow excessive male pattern hair, Founder Jasmine Nelson created a solution for herself and through her findings she has been able to help others. Thus, Umber is made by women who can relate to their customers. They have the same struggles and are able to be transparent—by providing not only products, but tips and methods to make life with excessive hair easier. Umber is committed to keeping their solutions affordable, pain-free, and easy to use. All delivered directly to your door.

Created in 2017 with a mission to facilitate the installation of tiny homes in the Bay Area, Tiny Logic specializes in all the messy details of acquiring and installing detached Accessory Dwelling Units (ADU’s) and Tiny Homes on Wheels. Their experience includes DIY tiny house construction, off-grid Tiny House Community Development and Operations, sales of prefab modular ADU’s, site prep, and permitting for “sheds,” Tiny Homes on Wheels, and ADU’s. With specialization in the laws, permitting paths, installation, and management of emerging housing ecosystems, they’re working towards an over saturation of affordable future-ready housing.
Viscera came about as an accident of sorts, Founder and Creative Director Ari Takata-Vasquez recalls. She had a brick and mortar shop where she used her design background to create everything from products to packaging to space design. After the first year or two, people came in to inquire about who did the design work and the rest is history. Given that she can speak from the place of both designer and entrepreneur, she’s able to offer an empathetic and holistic approach to building a brand. She and her team provide a unique perspective in creating tangible, tactical guidance and design to help a business grow.

Born out of a want for more freedom for herself and to support other travelers amidst a white-washed travel/tourism culture, Founder Acacia Woods-Chan created Ethnic Ties. Originally, the company was built to provide tailored, authentic international travel curation based on the belief that everyone should be able to travel in comfort and confidence. However, as they navigate the unforeseen effects of COVID-19, they’re pivoting to focus on local tourism in order to support local businesses and highlight the rich and diverse cultures here in the SF Bay Area.

COVID-19 Navigation is a free program offered by the Alliance to Bay Area entrepreneurs, small business owners, nonprofits, and other community organizations. The purpose of this program is to demystify the COVID-related resources available to entrepreneurs and organizations, provide one-on-one guidance and technical assistance, and foster network connections within the ecosystem. Businesses can consider the Alliance’s Navigation Team as a research team that will help them save time and energy during this stressful period.

What Makes Our COVID Navigation Unique?

- This is an entirely FREE program, including ongoing support!
  - Check-in frequency is determined by the entrepreneur, but we aim to have monthly check-ins at minimum.
  - We send reminders for time-sensitive grants for eligible entrepreneurs.
  - Entrepreneurs receive a personalized resource roadmap with monthly updates.
- Our sessions are entrepreneur-led:
  - Entrepreneurs tell us what they need, not the other way around.
- Entrepreneurs are supported as people, not just as business owners.
- Entrepreneurs can connect with other entrepreneurs who are willing to help and are readily available for mentorship and peer support.
- Personalized support is available for what entrepreneurs need-- whether it is a listening ear, resources, connections, or help organizing ideas.

Our Team

We have a collective 20 years of experience supporting businesses, local economic development, information systems and marketing. Our team has supported entrepreneurs via resource connections, business model pivot assistance, networking, general problem solving, PPP application technical assistance, and emotional support.
